Getting Financial Assistance for Graduate School

A decision to admit does NOT guarantee any funding from UMBC. Decisions with regard to graduate assistantships are made separately. Graduate research assistants are selected by a merit-based system, while graduate work study assistants are chosen using need-based criteria.

Tuition Expenditure: For current graduate school tuition and fees, visit the Graduate School's website. Tuition and fees are charged per credit hour not per semester.

Residency and Fees: Applicants seeking classification as a Maryland resident for tuition and charge differential purposes must complete a Maryland in-state status form, which accompanies the application for admission.

Financial Aid: Indicate on your application whether or not you wish to be considered for a graduate research assistantship. Receipt of an offer of an assistantship is very competitive and admission does not guarantee that the School will be able to fund your graduate education. All domestic applicants seeking any kind of aid should complete an Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA) (www.fafsa.ed.gov). The UMBC federal school code is 002105. Contact the Office of Financial Aid for details on VA benefits, federal loans, and scholarships: <http://financialaid.umbc.edu/>. For an overview of loans, grants and work-study assistance available to students through the federal government, visit the <http://studentaid.ed.gov>.

International Education Services: This office issues the I-20's and offers useful information for international students transitioning to life in the U.S. (See <http://ies.umbc.edu/>)

Graduate Research Assistantships: The School of Public Policy offers graduate research assistantships (RA's), with stipends, tuition, and health benefits to qualified admitted applicants to the M.P.P. and Ph.D. programs for full- time study. In addition to a stipend and health benefits, graduate research assistants receive a 5-10 credit tuition waiver each semester (fall and spring).

A graduate research assistant is required to be a full-time student and work 20 hours per week (from typically mid-August - mid-June) as a research assistant for a faculty member (or members) assisting with the research projects or serving as a teaching assistant. He or she may not hold another paid position within (or outside) of the university, without the consent of the director of the School of Public Policy, and the Graduate School. If you wish to be considered for an RA position through the School of Public Policy, you must apply for admission, and indicate on the Graduate School application that you wish to be considered for a research or teaching assistantship. Decisions on funding are made typically by April for the following academic year.

The Hilltop Institute: is another on campus research entity. Hilltop hires quantitatively talented graduate research assistants, as well as full-time employees, if the student's skill matches their current needs. For more information, please call: 410-455-6864 or visit their website: <http://www.hilltopinstitute.org>.

Peaceworker Program: The Peaceworker Program, which operates through the Shriver Center at UMBC, offers graduate fellowships to returning Peace Corps Volunteers so that they may pursue a master's degree full time at any of the consortium institutions. Deadline to apply: February 1. See their website for further details: www.shrivercenter.umbc.edu.

UMBCworks: The UMBC Career Center's online system (UMBCworks) is available to all current students (free of charge) and alumni (fee based). Students use this system to search for internships, part-time and full-time jobs, to post their resume in the resume book for employers, and to sign up for on-campus interviews. Employers with jobs posted to UMBCworks are specifically looking to hire UMBC students/ alumni. You must be a UMBC student or alumni to use this system. The Career Center also coordinates a large number of internships and cooperative education programs (www.careers.umbc.edu). Public Policy has a designated liaison at the Career Center to assist our students with career development.

Graduate (Work Study) Assistantship: For those who qualify for work-study, a number of assistantships are available each year. Information about these assistantships is posted on the Graduate School website under funding opportunities. Students seeking work study funding must file a FASFA application to determine eligibility for work study funds.

Employment Opportunities: Professional employees at UMBC are eligible for tuition waivers. For a listing of UMBC full-time and part-time positions, visit <http://hr.umbc.edu/>.

Employer Assistance Programs: Some employers offer tuition assistance programs to their employees. Check with your employer to see what funding opportunities may be available to you.
